WAS A GREAT DAY.

The Glorious Fourth Proves to be All that was Claimed For it.

Nature certainly smiled on Grand Rapids on the Fourth of July, and the people for miles around took advantage of the occasion to be present to see what we could put up in the way of a celebration. That they were not disappointed was evident from the way they talked of the day, and if they had been they would have been hard to please.

The early morning was bright and cheerful, but later on the sky became overcast, and everybody supposed that we were in for a good rain storm. The sun had been visiting us almost daily for the past two weeks. As the parade was forming the rain began to drizzle down, and it looked as if it was all off. But nature was just showing us how mean she could be if she wanted to, and in a few moments the rain had stopped and everything was lively.

The parade began to form promptly on an early time, and it was evident from the start that it was going to be a hummer. Daily decorated carriages could be seen and many floats of an industrial nature began to appear on the streets preparatory to falling into line. Grand Rapids has made several previous trials to have a Fourth of July parade, but this was the first successful issue of the undertaking. The forming of the parade occurred at the Dixon house, and as the teams continued to get into line the forward end of the procession reached to the east side of the bridge, and there were still numerous rigs that were waiting to fall in when the time passed.

The prizes were awarded to the following: For the best industrial float, Oberlook Brothers; best decorated carriage, Mrs. Edw. Lynch; best children's carriage, George and Raymond Mallon; Oberlook Bros. Mfg. Co., who took the prize for the best float, had prepared quite an elaborate affair, combining a nice display of furniture arranged with a number of mirrors that it presented a very handsome appearance.

Another float that presented a very nice appearance was that of J. T. Schumacher, which had been very tastefully arranged with colored bunting representing the national colors, and merchandise from the store, the combination being one that attracted universal attention from the sightseers.

Johnson and Hill had a float that represented the American Beauty. The idea was good and took well. The Grand Rapids Business College had a small chariot drawn by a short-hand pony and driven by a little fellow all being decorated with flowers so that it represented a handsome appearance.

The Grand Rapids Tea and Coffee Co., had a float with a number of Japanese girls on it, decorated in oriental colors and rugs and was not only very pretty but was also quite appropriate for what it represented. Many spoke of this float as deserving more than passing notice.

The Carpenters' Union had built the frame of a house on a wagon, and this they had gaily decorated with the national colors, and in it were a number of the members of the union. The Pioneer Wood Pulp company had a float decorated with the product of their mill, and inside was an old timer with an accordion who regaled the sightseers with all of the latest German airs. This float caused considerable comment and was very good, when it is considered how little there is to draw from a decorative nature manufactured by the mill.

The Foresters also had a float that was nicely decorated and occupied by a number of the order.

Otto's Pharmacy was well represented by a quite a unique setup in the shape of a fort with crowning guns and ponderous batonments. It was just showing us how mean she could be if she wanted to, and in a few moments the rain had stopped and everything was lively.

The Badger Box and Lumber Co. had an immense load of the different kinds of boxes that are manufactured at their plant, and as they were all branded with the name of the different firm and wares that they were to contain when delivered it made quite an attractive display.

The Grand Rapids Milling Co., also had a large float on which the predominant feature was their famous Victoria flour. Everything from tin drivers coat to the decorations on the wagon was made from these flour sacks, and the entire setup was very appropriate.

Among the decorated carriages there were a number that were deserving of more than passing mention besides the one driven by Mrs. Lynch that took the prize. One that was driven by Mayor Wheeler was decorated with the Elk colors, and as the smallest details of the rig and harness had been looked after, it presented a very handsome appearance.

The first of Kruger and Warner occupied a landau that was decorated in a manner that attracted the attention of all, and almost everybody admitted that it was the handsomest rig in the whole procession. However, as it was a decorated carriage and was used for advertising purposes it could hardly be placed under either head and probably for this reason was not in the running for a prize.

Another handsome turnout was that of W. J. Scott, the florist. This carriage was decorated with natural flowers and while not quite so showy in a parade, upon close inspection it presented a very handsome appearance.

Mrs. L. P. Wier also drove a handsomely decorated carriage, as well as Mrs. Geo. W. Mond, Mrs. J. D. Wither and Mrs. O. T. Hougton. Stanton Mend was also in the procession with his two mastiffs hitched to a small wagon and nicely decorated.

Both the carriages and floats were gotten up in such nice shape, and were so handsomely decorated that many of the spectators made the remark that they would dislike very much to be called on to award the prizes, as it would be hard to tell which were entitled to them.

When the heat end of the parade reached the court house grounds there the Rev. Fred Staff was introduced to the crowd that had assembled, and he spoke for a short time on subjects appropriate to the occasion. At the conclusion of the speech the parade went back across the river and disbanded.

In the afternoon the attractions were at the fair ground, where there was a ball game between the Marshallfield and Grand Rapids teams, which resulted in a very decided victory for the home team by a score of nine to two.

There were also horse races in progress at the same time as the ball game, the latter resulting as follows: Free for all trotting and pacing, Emmett McCarthy, first; Dr. V. P. Norton, second, and Harry McLean, third. In the running race Dr. Norton's horse came in first, E. Snyder, second, and Justin McCarthy, third.

George Mullen won the running race for ponies.

The balloon ascension occurred about 5:30 as advertised, and a fine ascent was made. There was very little wind and when the aeronaut got loose she was but a few blocks from where she started, going up from near the opera house and landing near the Roebuck residence on the hill.

After supper the swimming race was pulled off, there being four entries. The contest was won by Walter Olson in first place, Ed. Harland second and Hugh Goggin third.

After this the gasoline launch race occurred, there being three entries. John B. Arpin came in first, Varro Ramsey second, and Jack Sprouer third. This was a very interesting contest and was watched with great interest by the large crowd of people that lined the bridge and the shore on both sides of the river.

The day ended with a grand ball at the opera house at which the Imperial orchestra furnished the music. The hall was filled to overflowing and the amusement there was kept up until two o'clock in the morning.

Altogether it was a most successful day, and one long to be remembered by the people of this city and vicinity. Everybody seemed to be in the best of humor and nothing occurred to mar the pleasure of the day. The crowd was one of the largest ever seen in the city, and all the towns for miles around were represented. Such celebrations are a credit and a help to the town, and that it was such a success was due to the fact that the people in general turned in and made it such.

Lost—A chain bracelet. The finder will be rewarded by returning same to Mrs. Geo. E. Heskinson.

Base Ball Notice.

I beg to notify those citizens of Grand Rapids, who have subscribed for the purpose of organizing and maintaining a base ball club for this season, that the money that is being collected by Mr. Garibee has all been turned over to me and I have used the same for the purpose of organizing and maintaining a base ball team. At my solicitation and the solicitation of others, Mr. George Davis consented to act as manager, but owing to the fact that he could not devote any time to the management or the organization of the team it was necessary for some one to go ahead and attend to it. All bills that are contracted in connection with the base ball team will be paid, and any one desiring to examine the record of the receipts and disbursements may do so at any time by calling at my office.

I wish to thank those who have so kindly subscribed, and I feel confident that we now have a ball team that will be able to play any amateur ball team in the state and make creditable showing. It is almost impossible to succeed with any city matter unless the citizens will give their support in some form; and the team is expending considerable difficulty with lack of this moral support from a great many. If we desire a good team we must give them our support. It is a very poor policy to object and kick and knock and at the same time not contribute anything toward the support of the team. In fact, such spirit would discourage almost any one.

It is a noticeable fact that those who play the least, knock and kick and grumble the most. We intend to have some good games during the balance of the season and our schedule, at the present time, is as follows: Sunday, July 15th, we will play Merrill at Grand Rapids; Sunday, July 22nd, we will play Merrill at Grand Rapids; Sunday, July 29th, we will play Stevens Point at Grand Rapids; Sunday, August 5th, we will play Winona at Grand Rapids; Sunday, August 12th, we will play Wausau at Wausau. These teams are as good amateur teams as we can get without an unusual expense and we hope they will all be good games.

The team experienced considerable difficulty in getting organized by reason of the neglect of the management to take any active interest in attempting to organize the ball team, but we have at last secured a good line up and have established a reputation, so that with some support from us they will be able to play good ball.

Sunday School Picnic.

The Congregational church will give a basket picnic at Smith's farm on Thursday of this week. Conveyances will start from the church at 9 a. m. Members of the school will be transported free. MILL UNDER WAY.

New Sulphite Plant at Port Edwards Being Hurried Forward as fast as Practical.

Work on the new sulphite plant which is being erected by the Port Edwards Fibre Co. is being hurried forward as fast as possible and a large force of men and teams are kept at work daily on the work of excavation. Even to take out the ground for the foundations is quite a job, as the building is to be a big one and will occupy quite a piece of ground.

During an interview with C. F. Steele, the manager of the plant, that gentleman stated on Friday that the entire plan for the buildings had not been completed as yet, but that they were under way and would probably be closed up in the near future. The ground plan of the main building, however, is completed and it will be 28x140, which means that it is over a block long and half a block wide.

The foundations of the building will be of concrete and after these are built the remainder of the building will be of brick. There will be boilers installed in the plant for the generation of twelve hundred horsepower, and the capacity of the plant will be sixty tons of sulphite a day. There will be three digesters 15x12, seven wet machines and 24 barkers.

Now can get a good idea of the plant, however, until they see the ground plan of the new building, when its magnitude begins to be apparent. The dirt that is taken from the excavations of the foundations is being used to make the grade for the railroad track that will run to the building, and this dirt is being dumped right where it will be used later on, so that it will not have to be hauled again. The work on the new plant is in charge of William Uie, who will probably be on the ground the greater part of the time to look after matters.

Bever-Zoelle.

One of the most beautiful weddings of the season was solemnized last Tuesday at nine o'clock in the forenoon at St. Peter and Paul church when Mr. P. J. Zoelle and Miss Mary Bever were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. Rev. B. Hogenroth officiating.

At nine o'clock the bride and groom entered the church and marched down the aisle to the strains of the wedding march.

The bride was attended by Miss Mary Zoelle as brides maid, and Bert Bever was best man.

The bride wore a dress of white silk tissue over tulle and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations. The bridesmaid wore white organza and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Both the groom and his best man wore black. After pledging their vows and receiving some very good advice from the Rev. Father, they were driven to the bride's home on Washington Ave., here a sumptuous wedding breakfast awaited them and their guests.

The tables and rooms were tastefully decorated with white daisies and almost all flowers of the season that harmonized.

There was a bank of cool green ferns that added much to the beauty of the dining room. The happy pair and their guests sat down to a repast fit for a king. Plates were laid for 20, as follows: The bride and groom and their attendants, Mrs. F. McCarthy, Miss Colla McCarthy, Miss J. D. Longdon, Mrs. Lindley, Miss Courtney, Miss Hattie Zoelle, Ed. Young, J. Bever, Miss E. Bever, Miss B. Bever, Baby McCarthy, Miss Kittie Bever, Miss Millstein and Miss Grace Longdon.

At 1:30 the happy pair took their departure on the C. N. W. for a three weeks trip, some of the principal places they will visit being Milwaukee, Chicago, Niagara, and Buffalo. A large delegation escorted them to the train and they were literally showered with rice and old shoes.

The bride is well known in the city having been a teacher in the public schools of our county for a number of years and was liked and highly respected by all who knew her.

The groom is an exemplary man, in the employ of the C. N. W. R. R. in the capacity of agent in our city, and although he has been among us but one year, in that time he has made a host of friends, and won the confidence and respect of all whom he has come in contact with.

The bride and groom will make their home in this city and will be at home to their friends after August 1st.

It was a quiet but beautiful occasion and none but the relatives and a few friends were present, but present or absent all their friends join in congratulations and wishing them a life of unalloyed happiness.

Marshfield News:—A fight that took place on the morning the Hagenbeck circus unloaded here, between two celebrated Arabian stallions, would have attracted as large a crowd as the circus itself had it been advertised. They were only prevented from destroying each other by their attendants with clubs and not then until one had been so badly injured that he had to be sent to a veterinary at Minneapolis. The team, exactly matched in color and size, was valued at many thousands of dollars.

Library Meeting.

The commissioners of the T. R. Scott free library held their annual meeting on Monday evening. All of the old officers were elected with the exception of the secretary. Mrs. John E. Daly was elected to fill the vacancy on the board caused by the resignation of Mrs. T. A. Lipke, and Mrs. Daly was also elected secretary. The following is the report of the librarian, Miss Edith Rabin: To the Board of Directors of the T. R. Scott Free Library, Grand Rapids, Wis.

Herewith is submitted the annual report of the librarian for the year ending June 30th 1906. No event of importance has marked the course of the library year. Upon comparing the circulation of this year with that of 1905 we find a decrease of 225.

The reading room remains popular and seating capacity inadequate. 298 new books have been added, duplicate copies of Scribner's magazine and the World's Work have been circulated with good results.

Most of the magazines are so well protected by advertising matter that with the use of temporary binders and a little care on the part of the borrower back numbers of other magazines might be circulated and still be in good condition for binding. Circulating the magazines would also lessen the pressure on the new books.

Lists of new books have been printed and slipshits struck off from those for distribution. Anniversaries and special days have been observed with appropriate displays upon the screen and special books lists.

The lecture, given last fall, by Ernest Seton Thompson created an interest in natural history.

The card catalog grows with each order of new books and in a very short time it will be necessary to purchase a separate case for the short list.

Whenever possible we have availed ourselves of the cards issued by the Library of Congress. The new useful additions to the reference books have been Reed's Modern eloquence (Granger's)—Index to poetry and 24 volumes of bound periodicals.

Club women draw several books at a time and keep them an indefinite period. All necessary books have been reserved for the clubs during the year and in addition any reference books have been looked up in periodicals and reference books. The Women's Club, Travel class and Historical society have each contributed five dollars ($5.00) toward the purchase of books for next year's work.

The bulletin and documents belonging to the Wood Co. agricultural association have been moved to the library and stored in one of the small rooms adjoining the Business College. As soon as room can be secured these documents and pamphlets are to be shelved and cataloged so that the farmers may have access to them at any time.

We now have five school room libraries, two new ones having been purchased last fall.

The cards show a circulation of 1923 since last October of which 711 is credited to the second grade of the Emerson building. As was stated in the last report this work cannot be over estimated and although it may be impossible at present to extend the work to higher grades an effort must be made to keep the libraries as we now have in good condition and enlarge them as soon as possible. Teachers as heretofore may draw six books at a time and keep them one month and a longer time if renewed. Small collections of books and pictures have been loaned to some of the teachers for special work. Lists were also made along special lines as biography, literature, music and history and historical fiction. The books of fiction were read and reviewed by the pupils.

Many state and government documents are received each year and owing to lack of room, must be stored in various corners. These documents should be properly shelved and cataloged as soon as possible as they contain many valuable references not to be found elsewhere. The wall and floor are in need of repairs. Now chairs should be purchased for the reading room and best of the chair now in use in that room moved into the reference room. I would also suggest that one day in the year be used as "Library day" and plan on that day to give the citizens an opportunity to study the methods of administration of their Public Library.

In conclusion the librarian wishes to thank the members of the Library Board for their kindness and consideration during the year. Following is table of statistics:

Will Help Cranberry Men.

A dispatch from Chicago says: Prof. H. J. Cox, the weather forecaster, is now actively engaged in his Wisconsin mission of research work. Shod with hunting boots and armed with his thermometer he is patiently wading about in the soggy morasses of the "cranberry country" collecting data for a bulletin to be issued by the United States department of agriculture. For three years or longer he has made casual trips to the marshes for an introductory study of the climatic conditions, and now, dispatched by the government, he is engaged in compilation of a series of facts and statistics which it is thought will greatly facilitate the industry which they concern.

"Some people," said Prof. Cox before he left Chicago, "think that I am starting out upon a three months' vacation, but nothing is farther from the truth. These flat, desolate bog lands are completely God-forsaken. However, my interest in the work is great, and I expect to accomplish something."

The localities which Prof. Cox is making his bases are in Wood County and comprise four government stations: at Cameron, Cranmoor, Mathew and Berlin. Wisconsin supplies 22 per cent of the cranberry market, being ranked in output only by Cape Cod and New Jersey. Of the three, it is by far the most susceptible to those sudden and early frosts which are so destructive to the growing fruit.

Prof. Cox is collaborating with Prof. A. R. Whitson of the Wisconsin state experiment station at Cranmoor. Prof. Whitson is a soil expert, and has been devoting his time to a scientific study of sanding, draining, and cultivating. Prof. Cox, on the other hand, draws his data from such experiments as the effect of wind on frost; observation of the minimum temperature in different parts of the same marsh and at different elevations; temperature of bare soil as compared with that of covered, and subsurface temperatures. Work done here is equally applicable to the Cape Cod and New Jersey districts, which Prof. Cox will probably visit the latter part of August.

Several marshes near Berlin and Valley Junction, as well as swamps near Cameron, are owned by Chicagoans.

AMONG CRANBERRY MEN.

EDITED BY W. H. FITCH.

(All communications and special exchanges relating to this department should be sent to Cranmoor, Wood County, Wis.)

Experience and Cranberry Culture.

As a rule the longer one is engaged in cranberry growing the less disposition there is to speak dogmatically or profess infallibility. Not that this attitude may not be common to other vocations but that owing to changed conditions in regard to environment the handling of the crop presents new features the particular bearing of which is largely speculative.

Success and failure respectively seem to attend apparently similar treatment, but a systematic and scientific investigation would doubtless disclose varying factors.

The discussion as to methods of planting show no uniform agreement, which leaves it open for those engaged in the industry to try the different methods which have from time to time been employed.

The most prevalent is that of first scalping the sections to be planted and then spreading in the vines but where on account of continued wet conditions vine grass grows normally and abundantly mowing and planting in the undisturbed soil has been deemed productive of good results.

After planting the conditions regarded as most favorable are those which would avoid extreme changes, and hence supply of water for flooding and protective purposes, and drainage for warmth are important considerations.

Incident to it not vitally important in this respect is cooperative action among those commonly interested.

Specific procedure is not to be expected to be given in all cases, but as general education and enlightenment follows, study and experience, the application becomes easier and more practicable.

Carver Cranberry Conditions.

While it is rather early to predict the cranberry crop for the coming season there are indications of some damage by frosts. Some of the dry bogs were frozen and some bogs that were drained just enough to get tipped.

The season is about as usual as to blizzards, some have in sheltered situations, showing something of a blizzard. There is considerable building of new bogs and there will be quite a large acreage that will come into bearing this year.—Frank Paul Journal.

At South Carver.
Cranberry growers are engaged in a contest with worms, some by flooding and others by applying poison. This pest is from one and one half to two inches in length, mostly green, although there is a sprinkling of gray in the flock. They are called by some the army worms, and the degree of damage done by them appears to be conjectural. Prof. Anderson has a special variety whose devastations as far as reported are confined to his bog. They are called "spittle worms," and they have become so numerous as to threaten considerable damage.—Warren Mass.) Courier.

—Ask for profit sharing bonds; your neighbors like them so will you. Johnson & Hill Co.

The Outlook at Wareham.

(From Wareham (Mass.) Courier.)
The leading cranberry growers in Wareham are not looking for a very large crop this season. The early frosts have done much greater damage than was at first anticipated and as the season progresses, the results of those frosts become more evident. The bogs are late in blossoming, some growers reporting a few blossoms now, but nothing to speak of as yet. The difficulties to be overcome in coping with the destructive worms are very great. The army worm is doing an immense amount of damage and is rightly named as far as its numbers go. The fire worm, span worm and girdle moth are also found on the bogs in great numbers and should the fruit worm do as much damage this year as it did last season, the cranberry crop from Cape Cod will amount to very little more than it did last season. This is corroborated by growers from all points along the Cape. The damage from worms at South Carver is proving exceptionally serious.

Crop Conditions.
The hail storm which recently visited the cranberry district varied in its intensity and reports are given of some injury by cutting of vines and beating storm of blossoms.

It is thought, however, the damage in the aggregate will be found to be comparatively small although the full effect cannot be ascertained until later.

Continued and copious rains have caused considerable flooding of the marshes and in some cases, dams have been impaled requiring more or less repairs, to conserve the water supply for later needs.

The matter of drainage is also one of concern, and is receiving the attention of those engaged in the industry, that so much is being done to further their interests in the way of systematic and scientific investigations, which laborers will also be of gain to the general public as well as those directly concerned.

However utopian it may appear to the view, that witnesses the conflicting strife which is carried on in every day life, from time to time a sentiment is voiced and accorded, recognition that the interests of consumer and producer are not based on dissimil or antagonism, but may be established on lines mutually beneficial.

Saved His Comrade's Life.

While returning from the Grand Army Reunion at Washington City, a comrade from Elgin, Ill., was taken with cholera morbus and was in a critical condition," says Mr. J. R. Houghtland of Illinois, Iowa. "I gave him Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and believe saved his life. I have been engaged for ten years in immigration work and can attest to the value of this remedy in the south and west. I always carry this remedy and have used it successfully on many occasions." WAS A GREAT DAY.

The Glorious Fourth Proves to be All that was Claimed For it.

Nature certainly smiled on Grand Rapids on the Fourth of July, and the people for miles around took advantage of the occasion to be present to see what we could put up in the way of a celebration. That they were not disappointed was evident from the way they talked of the day, and if they had been they would have been hard to please.

The early morning was bright and cheerful, but later on the sky became overcast, and everybody supposed that we were in for a good rain storm the same as had been visiting us almost daily for the past two weeks. As the parade was forming the rain began to drizzle down, and it looked as if it was all over. But nature was just showing us how mean she could be if she wanted to, and in a few moments the rain had stopped and everything was lovely.

The parade began to form promptly on schedule time, and it was evident from the start that it was going to be a hummer. Gaily decorated carriages could be seen and many floats of an industrial nature began to appear on the streets preparatory to pulling into line. Grand Rapids has made several previous trips to have a Fourth of July parade, but this was the first successful one of the undertaking. The forming of the parade occurred at the Dixon house, and as the teams continued to get into line the forward end of the procession reached to the east side of the bridge, and there were still numerous rigs that were waiting to fall in when the line passed.

The prizes were awarded to the following: For the best industrial float, Oberbeck Brothers; best decorated carriage, Mrs. E. W. Lynch; best children's carriage, George and Raymond Mullin; Oberbeck Bros. Mfg. Co., who took the prize for the best float, had prepared quite an elaborate affair, containing a nice display of furniture so arranged with a number of mirrors that it presented a very handsome appearance.

Another float that presented a very nice appearance was that of J. T. Schumacher, which had been very tastefully arranged with colored bunting representing the national colors, and merchandise from the store, the combination being one that attracted unusual attention from the sightseers.

Johnson and Hill had a float that represented the American Beauty. The idea was good and took well.

The Grand Rapids Business College had a small chariot drawn by a shaggy pony and driven by a little fellow all being decorated with flowers so that it represented a handsome appearance.

The Grand Rapids Tea and Coffee Co., had a float with a number of Japanese girls on it, decorated in oriental colors and rags and was not only very pretty but was also quite appropriate for what it represented. Many spoke of this float as deserving more than passing notice.

The Carpenters' Union had built the frame of a house on a wagon, and this they had gaily decorated with the national colors, and in it were a number of the members of the union.

The Pioneer Wood Pulp company had a float decorated with the product of their mill, and inside was an old timer with an accordion who regaled the sightseers with all of the latest German airs. This float caused considerable comment and was very good, when it is considered how little there is to draw from a decorative nature manufactured by the mill.

The Foresters also had a float that was nicely decorated and occupied by a number of the order.

Otto's Pharmacy was well represented by quite a unique group in the shape of a fort with frowning guns and ponderous battlements. It was of a character that attracted a great deal of attention and was quite appropriate to the day.

The Badger Box and Lumber Co. had an immense load of the different kinds of boxes that are manufactured at their plant, and as they were all branded with the name of the different firm and wares that they were to contain when delivered it made quite an attractive display.

The Grand Rapids Milling Co., also had a large float on which the predominant feature was their flour and various flour. Everything from six drivers out to the decorations on the wagon was made from these flour sacks, and the entire getup was very appropriate.

Among the decorated carriages there were a number that were deserving of more than passing mention besides the one driven by Mrs. Lynch that took the prize. One that was driven by Mayor Wheeler was decorated with the Elk colors, and as the smallest details of the rig and harness had been looked after, it presented a very handsome appearance.

The firm of Kruger and Warner occupied a position that was decorated in a manner that attracted the attention of all, and almost everybody admitted that it was the handsomest rig in the whole procession. However, as it was a decorated carriage and was used for advertising purposes it could hardly be placed under either head and probably for a prize.

Another handsome turnout was that of W. L. Scott, the florist. This carriage was decorated with natural flowers and while not quite so showy in a parade, upon close inspection it presented a very handsome appearance.

Mrs. I. P. Wier also drove a handsomely decorated carriage, as well as Mrs. G. W. Mead, Mrs. J. D. Witter and Mrs. O. T. Houghton. Stanton Mead was also in the procession with his two mastiffs hitched to a small wagon and nicely decorated.

Both the carriages and floats were gotten up in such nice shape, and were so handsomely decorated that many of the spectators made the remark that they would dislike very much to be called on to award the prizes, as it would be hard to tell which were entitled to them.

When the head end of the parade reached the court house grounds there the Rev. Fred Stett was introduced to the crowd that had assembled, and he spoke for a short time on subjects appropriate to the occasion. As the conclusion of the speech the parade went back across the river and disbanded.

In the afternoon the attractions were at the fair ground, where there was a ball game between the Marshfield and Grand Rapids teams, which resulted in a very decided victory for the home team by a score of nine to two.

There were also horse races in progress at the same time as the ball game, the latter resulting as follows: Free for all trotting and pacing, Emmett McCarthy, first; Dr. V. P. Norton, second, and Harry McLean, third. In the running race Dr. Norton's horse came in first, P. Snyder, second, and Justin McCarthy, third. George Mullon won the running race for ponies.

The balloon ascension occurred about 5:30 as advertised, and a fine account was made. There was very little wind and when the ascension took place it was but a few blocks from where she started, going up near the opera house and landing near the Roemer residence on the hill.

After supper the swimming race was pulled off, there being four entries. The contest was won by Walter Olson in first place, Ed. Harding second and Hugh Goggin third.

After this the gasoline launch race occurred, there being three entries. John B. Arpin came in first, Verno Ramsey second, and Jack Spenser third. This was a very interesting contest and was watched with great interest by the large crowd of people that lined the bridge and the shore on both sides of the river.

The day ended with a grand ball at the opera house at which the musical architecture furnished the music. The hall was filled to overflowing and the amusement there was kept up until two o'clock in the morning.

Although it was a most successful day, and one long to be remembered by the people of this city and vicinity. Everybody seemed to be in the best of humor and nothing occurred to mar the pleasure of the day. The crowd was one of the largest ever seen in the city, and all the towns for miles around were represented. Such celebrations are a credit and a help to the town, and that it was such a success was due to the fact that the people in general turned in and made it such.

Lost—A chain bracelet. The finder will be rewarded by returning same to Mrs. G. E. Hockinson.

Base Ball Notice.

I beg to notify those citizens of Grand Rapids, who have subscribed for the purpose of organizing and maintaining a base ball club for this season, that the money that is being collected by Mr. Garthie has all been turned over to me and I have used the same for the purpose of organizing and maintaining a base ball team. At my solicitation and the solicitation of others, Mr. George Davis consented to act as manager, but owing to the fact that he could not devote any time to the management or the organization of the team it was necessary for some one to go ahead and attend to it. All bills that are contracted in connection with the base ball team will be paid, and any one desiring to examine the record of the receipts and disbursements may do so at any time by calling at my office.

I wish to thank those who have so kindly subscribed, and I feel confident that we now have a ball team that will be able to play any amateur ball team in the state and make creditable showing. It is almost impossible to succeed with any city matter unless the citizens will give their support in some form, and the team is experiencing considerable difficulty with lack of this moral support from a great many. If we desire a good team and a team that will play with snap and vigor we must give them our object and kick and knock and at the same time not contribute anything toward the support of the team. In fact, such spirit would discourage almost any one.

It is a noticeable fact that those who play the least, knock and kick and grumble the most.

We intend to have some good games during the balance of the season and our schedule, at the present time, is as follows: Sunday, July 15th, will play at Merrill; Sunday, July 22nd will play at Merrill; Sunday, July 29th, we will play Stevens Point at Grand Rapids; on Sunday August 5th, we will play Horton at Grand Rapids; on Sunday, August 12th, we will play Wausau at Wausau. These teams are as good amateur teams as we can get without an unusual expense and we hope they will all be good games.

The team experienced considerable difficulty in getting organized, but owing to the neglect of the management to take any active interest in attempting to organize the ball team, but we have at last secured a good line up and have established a reputation, so that with some support from us they will be able to play good ball.

Sunday School Picnic.

The Congregational church will give a basket picnic at Smith's farm on Thursday of this week. Conveyances will start from the church at 9 a. m. Members of the school will be transported free. Others are cordially invited to join but will be expected to furnish their own rigs. If it rains Thursday, the picnic will be postponed until Friday.

MILL UNDER WAY.

New Sulphite Plant at Port Edwards Being Hurried Forward as fast as Practical.

Work on the new sulphite plant which is being erected by the Port Edwards Fibre Co. is being hurried forward as fast as possible and a large force of men and teams are kept at work daily on the work of excavation. Even to take out the ground for the foundations is quite a job, as the building is to be a big one and will occupy quite a piece of ground.

During an interview with G. E. Steele, the manager of the plant, that gentleman stated on Friday that the entire plans for the buildings had not been completed as yet, but that they were under way and would probably be closed up in the near future. The ground plan of the main building, however, is completed and it will be 280x140, which means that it is over a block long and half a block wide.

The foundations of the building will be of concrete and after these are built the remainder of the building will be of steel. There will be boilers installed in the plant for the generation of twelve hundred horsepower, and the capacity of the plant will be sixty cords of sulphite a day. There will be three digesters 16x12, seven wet machines and 24 barbers.

Few can get a good idea of the plant, however, until they see the ground plan of the new building, when its magnitude begins to be apparent. The dirt that is taken from the excavations of the foundations is being used to make the grade for the railroad track that will run to the building, and this dirt is being dumped right where it will be used later on, so that it will not have to be hauled again. The work on the new plant is in charge of William Uno, who will probably be on the ground the greater part of the time to look after matters.

Bever-Zoelle.

One of the most beautiful weddings of the season was solemnized last Tuesday at nine o'clock in the forenoon at St. Peter and Paul church when Mr. F. J. Zoelle and Miss Mary Bever were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. Rev. B. Hengoroth officiating.

At nine o'clock the bride and groom entered the church and marched down the aisle to the strains of the wedding march.

The bride was attended by Miss Mary Zoelle as brides maid, and Bert Bever as best man.

The bride wore a dress of white silk tissue over tulle and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations. The bridesmaid wore white organdy and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Both the groom and his best man wore black. After plighting their vows and receiving some very good advice from the Rev. Father, they were driven to the bride's home on Washington Ave., where a sumptuous wedding breakfast awaited them and their guests.

The tables and rooms were tastefully decorated with white daisies and almost all flowers of the season that harmonized.

There was a bank of cool green ferns that added much to the beauty of the dining room. The happy pair and their guests sat down to a repast fit for a king. Plates were laid for 30, as follows: The bride and groom and their attendants, Mrs. F. McCarthy, Miss Oelia McCarthy, Miss J. D. Longdon, Mrs. Lindholm, Mrs. Courtney, Miss Hattie Zoelle, Ed. Young, J. Bever, Miss B. Bever, Miss B. Bever, Baby McCarthy, Miss Kittie Bever, Miss Millstein and Miss Grace Longdon.

At 1:30 the happy pair took their departure on the O. N. W. for a three weeks trip, some of the principal places they will visit being Milwaukee, Chicago, Niagara, and Buffalo. A large delegation escorted them to the train and they were literally showered with rice and old shoes.

The bride is well known in the city having been a teacher in the public schools of our county for a number of years and was liked and highly respected by all who knew her.

The groom is an exemplary man, in the employ of the O. N. W. R. R. in the capacity of agent in our city, and although he has been "among us" but one year, in that time he has made a host of friends, and won the confidence and respect of all whom he has come in contact with.

The bride and groom will make their home in this city and will be at home to their friends after August 1st.

It was a quiet but beautiful occasion and none but the relatives and a few friends were present, but present or absent all their friends join in congratulations and wishing them a life of unalloyed happiness.

Marshfield News:—A fight that took place on the morning the Haggen book circus unfolded here, between two celebrated Arabian stallions, would have attracted as large a crowd as the circus itself had it been advertised. They were only prevented from destroying each other by their attendants with clubs and not then until one had been so badly injured that he had to be sent to a veterinary at Minneapolis. The team, exactly matched in color and size, was valued at many thousands of dollars.

Library Meeting.

The commissioners of the T. B. Scott free library held their annual meeting on Monday evening. All of the old officers were elected with the exception of the secretary. Mrs. John E. Daly was elected to fill the vacancy on the board caused by the resignation of Mrs. T. A. Lipke, and Mrs. Daly was also elected secretary.

The following is the report of the librarian, Miss Edith Rablin: To the Board of Directors of the T. B. Scott Free Library, Grand Rapids, Wis.

Herewith is submitted the annual report of the librarian for the year ending June 30th 1906. No event of importance has marked the course of the library year. Upon comparing the circulation of this year with that of 1905 we find a decrease of 22%.

The reading room remains popular and seating capacity inadequate. 208 new books have been added, duplicate copies of Scribner's magazine and the World's Work have been circulated with good results. Most of the magazines are so well protected by advertising matter that with the use of temporary binders and a little care on the part of the borrower book numbers of other magazines might be circulated and still be in good condition for binding. Circulating the magazines would also lessen the pressure on the new books.

Lists of new books have been printed and alphas struck off from those for distribution. Answered and special days have been observed with appropriate displays upon the screen and special book lists.

The lecture, given last fall, by Ernest Spon Thompson created an interest in natural history.

The card catalog grows with each order of new books and in a very short time it will be necessary to purchase a separate case for the sheet list.

Whenever possible we have availed ourselves of the cards issued by the Library of Congress. The most useful additions to the reference books have been Reed's—Modern eloquence Granger's—Index to poetry and 23 volumes of bound periodicals.

Class women draw several books at a time and keep them an indefinite period. All necessary books have been reserved for the clubs during the year and in addition any reference books have been looked up in periodicals and reference books. The Women's club, Travel class and Historical society have each contributed five dollars ($5.00) toward the purchase of books for next year's work.

The bulletins and documents belonging to the Wood Co. agricultural association have been moved in the library and stored in one of the small rooms adjoining the Business College. As soon as room can be secured these documents and pamphlets are to be shelved and catalogued so that the farmers may have access to them at any time.

We now have five school room libraries, two new ones having been purchased last fall.

The cards show a circulation of 1924 since last October of which 77% is credited to the second grade of the homeon building. As was stated in the last report this work cannot be over estimated and although it may be impossible at present to extend the work to higher grades an effort must be made to keep the libraries up to have in good condition and enlarge them as soon as possible. Teachers are heretofore may draw six books at a time and keep them one month and a longer time if renewed. Small collections of books and pictures have been loaned to some of the teachers for special work. Lists were also made along special lines as biography literature, music and history also historical fiction. The books of fiction were read and reviewed by the pupils.

Many state and government documents are received each year and owing to lack of room, must be stored in various corners. These documents should be properly shelved and catalogued as soon as possible as they contain many valuable references not to be found elsewhere. The walls and floors are in need of repairs. New chairs should be purchased for the reading room and host of the capital now in use in that room moved into the reference room. I would also suggest that one day in the year be used as "Library day" and plan on that day to give the citizens an opportunity to study the methods of administration of their Public Library.

In conclusion the librarian wishes to thank the members of the Library Board for their kindness and consideration during the year. Following is table of statistics:

Iola Meets Defeat.

The Iola baseball team came to this city on Sunday and were given a run for their money by the home team that they will not forget for a time. The score was 11 to 1 in favor of the Grand Rapids boys, the visitors failing to score until the ninth inning.

The game was a good one and was witnessed by a large number of enthusiastic spectators, but it was evident from the start that the home team was too strong for the visitors. The Grand Rapids team will play the Merrill boys at Merrill next Sunday.

Something Worth Reading.

A series of advertisements which will be worth reading is begun in this issue by the First National Bank of this city. Each week some subject will be treated as "Right drafts", "Protests", "How to draw a check", "How to endorse a check", "Checks and Discounts", etc. The explanations will be short and concise and calculated to simplify transactions at the bank.

The advertisements will be headed "Banking made plain" and will be of interest to everyone, whether a regular customer of the bank or not.

New Star in Flag's Corner.

Quartermaster General Thompson and Admiral Cowles, chief of the equipment bureau of the navy department, who are charged with the making and issuing of the national flags, have decided that the admission of Oklahoma shall be recorded by the addition of a star in the lower right hand corner. As several things remain to be done before the new state is actually admitted the Oklahoma star will not be seen on the national flag until July 1, 1907.

CASH STORE.

Special Clearing Sale

TWO WEEKS THURSDAY JULY 12 TO 26

In order to close out all summer merchandise of every description, it is a rule of this store which is strictly adhered to, never to carry over goods from one season to another, I will inaugurate a special 2 weeks' clearance sale beginning Thursday, July 12th and continue the same until the 26th. Owing to the cool and rainy weather my stock of summer goods is extraordinary large and as all goods must be closed out before the season ends I realize I must make some extraordinary low prices in order to move the large stock and this I will do. The bigger the stock the deeper the cut in prices. I need every inch of store room for the extra large stock of Fall and Winter merchandise which I have purchased. You will find every item just as it is advertised. The store where no exaggerations are indulged in. Where everything is just as advertised.

Will Help Cranberry Men.

A dispatch from Chicago says:—Prof. H. J. Cox, the weather forecaster, is now actively engaged in his Wisconsin mission of research work. Shod with hunting boots and armed with his thermometer, he is nationally famous for his "crab" country" collecting data for a bulletin to be issued by the United States department of agriculture. For three years or longer he has made annual trips to the marshes for an introductory study of the climatic conditions, and now, dispatched thither by the government, he is engaged in compilation of a series of facts and statistics which it is thought will greatly facilitate the industry which they concern.

"Some people," said Prof. Cox, before he left Chicago, "think that I am starting out upon a three months' vacation, but nothing is further from the truth. Those flat, desolate bog lands are completely God-forsaken. However, my interest in the work is great, and I expect to accomplish results."

The facilities which Prof. Cox is making his have are in Wood County, just outside the town of Manitowish, at Cameron, Cranmoor, Mather and Berlin. Wisconsin supplies 22 per cent of the cranberry market, being ranked in output only by Cape Cod and New Jersey. Of the three it is by far the most susceptible to those sudden and early frosts which are so destructive to the growing fruit.

Prof. Cox is collaborating with Prof. A. R. Whitson of the Wisconsin state experiment station at Cranmoor. Prof. Whitson is a soil expert, and has been devoting his time to a scientific study of watering, draining, and cultivating. Prof. Cox, on the other hand, draws his data from such experiments as the effect of wind on soil, observation of the minimum temperature in different parts of the same marsh and at different elevations, temperature of bare soil as compared with that of covered, and sub-surface temperatures. Work done here is equally applicable to the Cape Cod and New Jersey districts, which Prof. Cox will probably visit the latter part of August.

Several marshes near Berlin and Valley Junction, as well as swamps near Cameron, are owned by Chicagoans.

EDITED BY W. H. FITCH.
[All communications and special exchanges relating to this department should be sent to Cranmoor, Wood County, Wis.]

Experience and Cranberry Culture.

As a rule the longer one is engaged in cranberry growing the less disposition there is to speak dogmatically or profess infallibility. Not that this attitude may not be common to other vocations but that owing to changed conditions in regard to environment, the handling of the crop presents new features the particular handling of which is largely speculative.

Success and failure respectively seem to attend apparently similar treatment, but a systematic and scientific investigation would doubtless disclose varying factors.

The discussion as to methods of planting show no uniform agreement, which leaves it open for those engaged in the industry to try the different methods which have from time to time been employed.

The most prevalent is that of first scalping the sections to be planted and then spreading in the vines flat on the ground, covered with a layer of manure or some other material, and then planting the vines in the rows.
